Fairlawn, VA. — BAI Information Security recently announced significant expansions of training programs. Here are some of the highlights:

New classroom location—Orlando & San Diego

In addition to our “traditional” classroom locations in Colorado Springs, Huntsville and National Capital Region (Pentagon/ Crystal City area), and our Online Personal Classroom™ training, we will now be offering training in the San Diego, CA and Orlando, FL area, with RMF for DoD IT classes beginning in June, 2017.

Friday Supplemental classes

We will be introducing a series of one-day classes to supplement our four-day RMF for DoD IT training program. These classes will initially be offered to organizations planning “on-site” training. Options include:

- eMASS Workshop
- Continuous Monitoring Overview
- Certified Authorization Professional (CAP) exam preparation

Certified Cloud Security Professional (CCSP) Training

Like most of the IT world these days, security professionals are keenly interested in cloud computing. Accordingly, BAI will be launching a five-day training program that will provide guidance in securing systems and applications in the cloud environment, as well as preparing students to take the CCSP certification exam given by ISC2 (www.isc2.org). Training will begin with an online class in April, followed by a class in the National Capital Region (Pentagon/Crystal City area) in June.
