

BAI Announces Reopening of Training Classrooms

25 April 2022

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Fairlawn, Virginia ... BAI Information Security announced the return of in-person classroom training. “After nearly two years of offering strictly online instructor-led training, we have now resumed training in classroom locations around the country”, said Devon Schall, CEO of BAI Information Security. Classrooms have opened in our most popular “destination” locations, including Colorado Springs, Pensacola and San Diego. With the longer days of spring and summer now here, students can enjoy some outdoor time in the mountains or at the shore after their training days at these locations.

BAI classroom locations will be offering our flagship four-day Risk Management Framework (RMF) for DoD IT and RMF for Federal Agencies training programs, along with the one-day eMASS eESSENTIALS training. The full training schedule, along with online class registration, is available at <https://register.rmf.org>. The cost of training is $1,935 per student for the four-day training programs and $750 per student for the one-day eMASS training. A five-day training option is available at a discounted price of $2,495 per student.

In addition to the in-person classroom locations, BAI will continue to offer online, instructor-led training.

BAI Information Security is the leading provider of Risk Management Framework (RMF) training and consulting services. For further information, please contact Alice Steger, Director of Sales and Marketing, at 1-800-RMF-1903 (763-1903), or visit the BAI website at www.rmf.org.
